DALLAS -- Dallas will be host to the 1970 annual meeting of the Radiation Research Society of America March 1-5 at the Statler-Hilton Hotel, Dr. Mary Esther Gaulden, associate professor of radiology at The University of Texas (Southwestern) Medical School and local arrangements chairman for the meeting, announced today.

The five-day meeting will be attended by some 600 individuals from throughout the nation who are engaged in various aspects of research in radiation, Dr. Gaulden said.

Others on the local arrangements committee are Drs. Frederick J. Bonte, Donald E. Carlson and Alvin J. Greenberg of UTSMS, and Drs. Helga B. Harm, Walter S. Harm, John Jagger, Michael H. Patrick, Chaim Richmond, Claud S. Rupert and Harold Werbin of The University of Texas at Dallas.

The plenary session Monday morning, March 2, will feature a program on environmental pollutants, Dr. Gaulden said. Symposia, refresher courses and special lectures are scheduled throughout the week.
