What is EndNote?

EndNote is a software program that works with Microsoft Word to automatically format intext citations and end-of-paper reference lists with your chosen output style (APA, MLA, Chicago, etc.). EndNote can also be used as a personal database to gather and store citation records from different information sources. In addition, EndNote allows you to run searches via direct connection to a database (BIOSIS, PsycInfo, etc.)

- Collect references (bibliographic citation information) while you are searching and store them in your personal library.
- Manage your references in your library by storing them in groups and attaching PDFs of full-text articles.
- Automate the process of adding citations and references when you are writing a paper and create bibliographies in the referencing style of your choice.
- Synchronize your downloaded and online libraries and share and collaborate with up to 100 other people.
- Save time, be more organized, and let the software do the work of referencing for you!

Questions? Need More Training?

Personal/Group Training Request

The Library offers biomedical and other databases and resources in support of the clinical, education, and research activities of the campus. Experts are available to assist you in developing strategies to locate the information you need or enhance your skill set. Training is available for individuals as well as groups.

This service is available at no charge to faculty, staff, and students of The University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center, including the University Hospitals, as well as staff of Parkland Health and Hospital System, and Children's Medical Center.

Please indicate which training session(s) you would like to schedule below and identify the intended audience (personal or group).

Please email us if you experience any problems with this form. As of 6/17/2015, we are currently experiencing an issue with this training form's confirmation page. If you are making a training request off campus, you may receive a blank confirmation page when you submit the form. Rest assured, we are still receiving your information.
