AN ARGUMENT FOR A LIBERAL PUBLIC HEALTH: REFLECTIONS ON A DISCIPLINE IN FLUX AFTER COVID-19

SANDRO GALEA, M.D., M.P.H., DR.P.H.

Dean and the Robert A. Knox Professor, Boston University School of Public Health and Professor of Family Medicine, Boston University School of Medicine

Health has been in the spotlight in an unprecedented fashion during the COVID-19 pandemic. While there is no question that much that was done during the pandemic saved lives, it is also the case that the pandemic should be cause for reflection about what we did not do as well as we should have. How should we rethink what we do and how we do it in health in the aftermath of COVID-19? What are the key takeaways from the pandemic that can make for better efforts towards the health of populations?

This live lecture will be presented in a hybrid-learning format – you may choose to attend either:

In-person in the Eugene McDermott Lecture Halls, D1.502

OR

Virtually via Zoom.
