*First City, Texas gives
University Hospital $100,000

Ronald F. Garvey, M.D., M.B.A., president and chief executive officer of Zale Lipshy University Hospital at Southwestern Medical Center, announced that First City, Texas today contributed $100,000 to the hospital.

Darryl D. Pounds, chairman and chief executive officer for First City, Texas-Dallas and regional director for First City's North Texas Region, presented the check to Dr. Garvey. Also on hand for the presentation was John Bunten, president of First City Texas-Dallas.

"We're glad to see the banking community in Dallas supporting University Hospital," said Dr. Garvey. "It's an investment that will pay dividends for the entire business community as people begin to think of Dallas as a national center for medical care and technology."

"Every bank has a responsibility to foster economic growth in the markets it is chartered to serve," said Bunten. "Our commitment to Zale Lipshy University Hospital goes beyond economics to an area of human need, to the improvement and preservation of life for thousands of Texans and others. University Hospital reflects a great commitment by the corporate and private citizens of Dallas. We are proud to be part of this partnership."

University Hospital opened the last week of November 1989. It is a 160-bed private referral, teaching and research hospital at The University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas. University Hospital is still conducting an active fund-raising campaign for the purchase of equipment.

Sam Prince, development officer for University Hospital's Corporate Campaign, says the campaign has raised $1.1 million so far. The goal is $3.7 million.

The overall fund-raising campaign has netted more than $31 million dollars, says development officer George Charlton, primarily from individuals and corporate-related foundations.
