DALLAS -- Dr. Franklin J. Stein, assistant director of the Animal Facility, University of Texas (Southwestern) Medical School, recently served as a member of the Curriculum Committee of the College of Veterinary Medicine, Texas A&M University.

He was one of several recent graduates chosen to evaluate the course content leading to a veterinary degree after having had from 2 to 5 years of actual practice as a means of testing his preparation for the area of specialization in which he is engaged. He was the only member who is engaged in the practice of laboratory animal medicine.
