DALLAS-- Dr. Bryan Williams, associate dean of student affairs at The University of Texas Southwestern Medical School, has been elected chairman of the Board of Governors of the American College of Physicians for 1975-76. Established in 1915, the College of Physicians is composed of qualified teachers, investigators and practitioners in the field of internal medicine and its allied specialties.

According to Dr. Williams, the group "until very recently was mainly honorific and educational. Within the last year-and-a-half, however, it has made drastic policy changes in that now it is going to concern itself more with the delivery of health care and the problems of society."
