DALLAS -- The first regular meeting of a new medical organization, the Dallas Society of the Neurosciences, will be held at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 21, in the auditorium at Children's Medical Center in Dallas.

The agenda will include ratification of bylaws, election of officers and a scientific program.

"With the anticipated development of Dallas as a neurological center, there is an obvious need for creation of a scientific organization which will serve as a forum for exchange of information and ideas," explained Dr. William S. Fields, professor of neurology at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School.

The scientific program at the meeting will be concerned with "Therapeutic Value of Hypophysectomy (removal of pituitary gland)"
