reorganizes.

DALLAS--A reorganization with promotions and additions to the Office of Medical Information at the health science center has been completed.

Information Director Bob Fenley announced that Ann Harrell has been promoted to assistant director. Nationally recognized for her work by Women in Communications and other organizations, Harrell has undertaken various projects and has authored numerous stories about the health science center which have received wide media attention.

Ann Williams has assumed the post of editor III and in that capacity has overall editorial charge of all Office of Information publications, including bulletins of the three center schools, Spectrum magazine (of which she is editor) and Center Times.

Jill Carlton, an employee of the Information Office for 11 years, has been promoted to administrative coordinator. Carlton is in charge of production for the office's publications and has responsibility for revision and publication of bulletins and directories in addition to other administrative duties.

Susan Wilson has been appointed informational writer II, in which capacity she is editor of Center Times, the monthly tabloid newspaper of the health science center. Wilson also has additional duties in the area of internal affairs.

New to the office are Ric Spiegel and Susan Rutherford.

Spiegel is former executive director of Theater Three and a former information director for the Fort Worth Museum of Science and History. In addition to writing, he will have particular responsibility in the areas of electronic media.

Rutherford has been a writer for the Living section of the Dallas Times Herald, is a former Lifestyle writer for the Midland Reporter-Telegram and teaches college-level art history. She is engaged in writing about research and other news of the health science center.

Judith Garvin has been promoted to administrative secretary. In that capacity she produces the bi-weekly calendar of events for the center in addition to other duties.

Kay Redburn has been named senior secretary and her duties, in addition to secretarial activities, include conducting tours for various groups who visit the center.

A principal task of the Information Office is attracting public attention to the health science center by disseminating and arranging news media coverage about medical discoveries, research and other notable events.
