MEDICAL ETHICS RELATED TO CHILD ABUSE: EVALUATIONS, DIAGNOSES, AND REPORTING

DEBORAH E. LOWEN, M.D.

*Former Deputy Commissioner of Child Health, Tennessee Department of Children's Services
Senior Medical Editor, Child Abuse Pediatrics Sub-board, American Board of Pediatrics*

For medical practitioners encountering situations of child abuse or neglect, the subject matter itself can be difficult and even traumatizing. The ethical issues that arise add to the discomfort for those involved with these cases. Through case vignettes, this webinar will discuss some of the more common ethical dilemmas, such as determining a plan for medical evaluations related to abuse, formulating medical diagnoses, and responding to mandatory reporting laws. The relationship of these ethical issues to concerns about the roles and functioning of child welfare agencies will also be addressed.

This live lecture will be presented virtually.
